Guest Performer

Martha Conwell Long joined the Baltimore Symphony in September 2024 as their new principal flute. Previously she held the same position with the Oregon Symphony and the Oregon Bach Festival for eight seasons, the San Antonio Symphony for four seasons, and the Fort Collins Symphony in Colorado for three seasons. Martha has appeared as guest principal flute with the Chicago, Baltimore, and Pacific Symphonies and ProMusica Chamber Orchestra. During the summer of 2024, she performed with the Cabrillo Festival of Contemporary Music in Santa Cruz, CA.

Martha grew up in Chapel Hill, NC, where she studied with Brooks de Wetter-Smith and Helen Spielman. She completed her Bachelor of Music degree at the Colburn School in Los Angeles, studying with Jim Walker. Martha continued her studies at the New England Conservatory in Boston, completing a Graduate Diploma as a student of Elizabeth Rowe. While in school, she received fellowships to the Bowdoin International Music Festival, Music Academy of the West, and Tanglewood Music Center, including two summers as a New Fromm Player. As a student, Martha was a prize winner at the Mid-South Flute Society Young Artist Competition, the Pittsburgh Flute Club Young Artist Concerto Competition, the National Flute Association's Orchestral Audition Competition, and the NFA's Young Artist Competition.

Martha plays on a handmade Powell flute and is a Powell Artist. In her spare time, she enjoys reading, baking, and exploring her new hometown.

Special Thanks To:

The Department of Music, and all the students, interns, and volunteers who made this performance possible.
